Mercury Drops Below Zero Mark In Circleville—Frigidity to Continue

The mercury sank to the lowest temperature of the winter Sunday night when it decended to three degrees below zero. Auto radiators and pipes rroze and pedestrians were fanned with a brisk wind from the northwest. Zero and near zero weather is predicted to continue for several days.

Monday morning the mercury climbed eight degrees and at 7 o'clock was resting comfortably at 5 degrees above zero.

Church-goers Sunday morning attended the services with the temperature at 7 above. The maximum temperature reached Sunday was 27.

The light snow which fell also added to the misery of pedestrians and autoists, making the streets and sidewalks fine skating rinks and some country hills would serve as ski jumps.

Ponds and all still water are covered with ice and skating is in order.

2 COLD DAYS AHEAD

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14.—Ohio, shivering in the coldest temperatures for this date in 12 years, is due to continue suffering for at least two more days, according to Weatherman W. H. Alexander here today. The average temperature over the state today was officially recorded at zero at 6 o'clock this morning. The mercury is scheduled to rise about five degrees and then sink down again at nightfall until it will register zero or below.

The coldest spot in the state so far reported was at Marysville where six below was officially recorded.

These temperatures are from 25 to 30 degrees below the average mean temperature for the date—the January average being 28.1 degrees. It was back in 1917 that Ohio experienced as cold as Jan. 14. The mercury was two below on that date. In 1895 the temperature was down to zero on Jan. 14.

4 DIE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—With four persons dead and scores ill from exposure, Chicago was promised temporary relief today from the record breaking sub-zero wave.

When the mercury dropped to 10 below here yesterday, it marked the coldest Jan. 13 in the history of the local weather bureau. The minimum was reached at 10 a. m. as thousands of churchgoers started out, unaware of the severe overnight drop in temperature. One aged woman was overcome and died on the street.

While the ten below mark was the official reading at the federal building in downtown Chicago, many suburbs reported temperatures ranging down to 23 degrees below. At Cary, Ill., where the international ski meet was held, a theromcter registered 32 below.

Subzero temperatures will continue, with brief periods of relief, until Wednesday "at least," was the cheerless report of Forecaster J. R. Lloyd. By "warmer today," Lloyd meant 15 or 20 degrees above zero. Tomorrow will be colder again, a new frigid wave bearing down from Alaska.

Two men and a woman were found dead on the street here yesterday.

Mrs. Johanna Fleske, 70, of Edgar, Wis., visiting relatives here, died on her way to church.

Alphonso Owimet, 54, was found frozen to death in a hallway where e had sought temporary refuge from the cold.

Cuno Schizatillo, 38, father of six children, was found frozen to death in a vacant lot. He had left his home to seek employment.

Another man, as yet unidentified, died from exposure.

MRS. STITT RITES ARE HELD MONDAY

Funeral services for Mrs Ellen Stitt, 78, wife of Samuel Stitt who died at her home in Washington-twp at 5:30 p. m. Friday, were held at the Albaugh funeral chapel on Monday, Rev. L. Green, of the U. B. Circuit officiating. Interment was in Forest cemetery.

She was the daughter of Isaac and Ann Eliza Adkins and was born in Circleville. Her husband and one brother, Isaac Adkins, survive.

HE IS OHIO'S NEW GOVERNOR

For the first time in eight years, Ohio inaugurated a Republican governor when Myers Y. Cooper, of Cincinnati, took the oath of chief executive for the state at Columbus Monday noon.

CIRCLEVILLE'S PROGRESS IN HANDS OF TOWN'S CITIZENS

More population, more industries, more capital, more trade and more prosperity are the important things which Circleville needs in order to move forward on the Road to Progress. So says the tenth community-boosting advertisement which has been inserted in this issue by the merchants and professional people of the town.

It is very commendable that the boosting committee has, at their own expense, prepared and paid for the series of town boosting advertisements which have appeared so far in The Herald. This committee forms a group of earnest, patriotic, loyal citizens who are vitally interested in the good of Circleville and its proper advertisement.

The committee alone, as a committee or as few individuals, cannot hope to accomplish the splendid plan they have built for the town's progress. Only when every person has "put his shoulder to the wheel" can we gain momentum and reach the Goal of Progress.

Circleville is rich in opportunities—rich in possibilities for the town and for its citizens. We are well situated for logical development and growth. And, when we citizens shall have shown a true spirit of patriotism and progress, the outside world will sit up and take notice of the possibilities here.

More population will come from keeping our city clean, morally and physicially. Prospective citizens want, first of all, a healthful city. And a healthy atmosphere means not only clean streets and sanitation, but it also includes good schools and churches and freedom of demoralizing influences. There is an exodus from the larger cities to towns of the size and we can induce good thinking citizens to come here if we'll show them that Circleville is a good place in which to live.

More industries and capital will come when they understand that Circleville is a contented and progressive town, that it can offer manufacturing or production opportunities; that employment conditions are favorable.

More trade can be had as we build up our commercial organization and enlarge our facilities. And one of the best ways in which to do this is to patronize our home merchants. Keep the trade at home and enable our stores and professional people to enlarge and give greater service. Keep your dollars at home where you not only get honest values, but where your money helps to acquire civic improvements and betterments that benefit your family and attract outsiders.

A great number of citizens have already responded nobly to the various appeals for civic patriotism and action. Those of you who have not yet entered into the spirit of this progress program for Circleville can get into the game now and still do a world of good. Read through the full page advertisement in this issue and then resolve to join hands with those who are so unselfishly working for the good of the town.

FARM ACCOUNTING SCHOOL IS OPENED

The farm account school under the direction of J. C. Neff, farm account specialist of Ohio State university, and H. S. Lewis, started at the farm bureau home Monday morning with about 15 farmers in attendance.

A larger crowd was expected for the afternoon session but due to the large amount of sickness in the county the attendance was small.

The object of the school is to give the farmers a system of accounting which will enable them to see their gains and their losses, and do their marketing accordingly.

In the presence of admiring relatives and friends, Governor Cooper was inducted into the gubernatorial office shortly after noon when he received the oath of office administered by Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, of the Ohio supreme court.

The inaugural ceremony proper started at 11:30 a. m. at the west entrance to the statehouse when the audience sang, and the American Legion band played, "The Star-Ppangled Banner."

TAKES OFFICE OATH

As master of ceremonies, Claude Meeker, Columbus, introduced the retiring governor, Vic Donahey who presented Gov. Cooper with his commission.

The noon hour having arrived, Chief Justice Marshall proceeded to administer the oath of office to Governor Cooper. At the conclusion of this part of the ceremony a gun section from the 134th Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard, fired the governor's salute of 17 guns from cannon stationed on the statehouse campus.

Governor Cooper then delivered his inaugural address. By means of a radio hookup, including Columbus, Cincinnati and Cleveland broadcasting stations, the inaugural address and other parts of the inaugural ceremonies were carried to many thousands of Ohioans and residents of other states.

LOUDSPEAKER USED

The magnavox, or loudspeaker, was utilized in making it possible for all persons standing on the statehouse steps and on the campus west of the state capital to hear with ease Governor Cooper's address and the rest of the inaugural program.

At the conclusion of the inaugural parade, which marched through the downtown business district this afternoon, the new governor and the male members of his party lunched at the Athletic club. Arriving at the reviewing stand at the north entrance to the statehouse campus, Governor Cooper and his party, together with members of the Ohio legislature and other state officials, reviewed the big parade. Immediately after the parade, a public reception was held in the statehouse rotunda for Governor Cooper and other new state officials. A reception and tea were held for Mrs. Cooper in the ballroom at the Deshler-Wallick hotel.

PLAN THREE INVESTIGATIONS IN MRS. BABE RUTH'S DEATH

Bambino Identifies Body of Woman Fatally Burned In Dentist's Home.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Three separate investigations were under way today into the circumstances surrounding the death of Helen Woodford Ruth, estranged wife of George H. (Babe) Ruth, king of baseball players, in a mysterious fire Friday night in the suburban home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder, wealthy dentist.

While the broken-hearted home run king sought refuge from the glare of the spotlight in which he has so often basked, the authorities were considering the possibility that the fire may have been of incendiary origin. Although an autopsy revealed that death was caused by "suffocation or incineration" burial of the former Boston waitress will not be allowed by the authorities until a searching police investigation has been made.

DENTIST MISSING

Dr. Kinder, from whose residence the ball player's wife was dragged in a dying condition late Friday night, has not been seen since the day after the tragedy. He disappeared after telling neighbors he was going to New York to break the sad news to Ruth.

The dual life of Mrs. Ruth was not revealed until her picture published under the caption of "Mrs. Kinder" in a Boston newspaper, was recognized as that of the wife of the home run king. Then sensation followed sensation.

The Babe himself, was summoned from New York tearful and presenting the appearance of a broken man, he identified the body of his wife and issued the following brief statement:

"I have not lived with my wife for three years. In that period I have seen her only a few times.

"I have done everything to comply with her wishes. Her death is a great shock to me. That is all I wish to say."

DENIES DIVORCE

Later, when he was informed that William H. Kinder, Jr., brother of the missing dentist, declared that Dr. Kinder and Mrs. Ruth had been married in Montreal he said he never had divorced his wife and never had been served with any notice of any divorce suit brought by her.

Ruth's identification followed identification by the Misses Nora and Catherine Woodford, sisters of the dead woman.

Meanwhile Watertown police were searching to question Dr. Kinder.

District Attorney Robert P. Bushnell, declared he would probe all angles of the tragedy.

Neighbors told police, however, that Mrs. Ruth had been accepted as Mrs. Kinder for the past year and that the Ruth's nine-year-old daughter had been known as Dorothy Kinder. The wealthy doctor formerly was one of Ruth's best friends.

HOOVER PLANS LIQUOR PROBE

Will Appoint Fact Finding Commission Following His Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—A fact-finding commission, composed of outstanding citizens, to conduct a thorough and non-Partisan investigation into every phase of the prohibition question is to be appointed by Herbert Hoover soon after he steps into the presidency on March 4.

Consideration of the personnel of this commission is occupying almost as much of the president-elect's time as is the consideration of his cabinet appointments. Mr. Hoover is anxious to make the prohibition commission a jury of such outstanding eminence and ability that neither the wets nor the dry's can charge prejudice. In the innumerable conferences he has held since returning to Washington, however, he has found that an impartial observer on prohibition is a comparatively rare specimen.

Mr. Hoover wants to make his fact-finding commission representative of American life. With that in view, it is said he is favorable to the idea of a commission of nine, which would include an outstanding business leader, a banker, several lawyers, a physician, a scientist, an economist, an educator, a sociologist and a labor leader. There probably will be one or more women.

Six Sightseers Are Trapped By 56th Story Fire

NEW YORK, Jan. 14— Trapped by fire in the observation tower of the Woolworth building, nearly 700 feet in the air, while a stiff wind whipped the flames which almost completely cut off the way of escape below!

That was the dilemma in which Miss Margaret Shields, of Bay City, Mich., and five male sightseers found themselves late yesterday when fire broke out in the elevator shaft on the 56th story, just below them. Hundreds of persons on the street below, looking like ants to the six in the tower, watched fascinated.

Then Edward Link, of Sunnyside, N. Y., brother-in-law of Miss Shields, decided to run the gauntlet. He wrapped his overcoat around her and staggered through smoke and fire to safety down the narrow stairway. Two of the other men accompanied them. The last two remained quaking in the tower while firemen climbed eight stories and extinguished the blaze.

The survivors were little the worse today for their thrilling experience. It was the city's highest fire.

SAYS SMITH WAS CHEATED

Gov. Roosevelt Says Al Was Beaten By Bigotry, Ignorance and Lies.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14—Former Gov. Al Smith was "cheated" out of the presidency at the last election by "bigotry, ignorance of Democratic principles, and by the spread by unspeakable and un-American methods of the most atrocious falsehoods," in the opinion of Democratic leaders throughout the country, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt declared in a statement today.

Roosevelt conferred last night at the executive mansion for three hours with Smith on ways and means of making the Democratic party a militant organization, one that will function every day in the year.

Smith is scheduled to deliver a political address Wednesday night to the voters of the country over a national radio hook-up. It is understood he had a heart-to-heart talk with Gov. Roosevelt on the plans to say in his forthcoming radio speech.

This was Smith's first visit to Albany since Roosevelt became governor.

Governor Roosevelt issued his statement summing up the views of the Democrats of the country 24 hours before he knew Smith was coming to confer with him.

MATRON IS NAMED

The board of the Home and Hospital met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Noecker on Watt-st. Mrs. Bunker has been the matron for more than a year.

MUHLENBERG FARMER ENDS LIFE SUNDAY

Peter Cramblett, 48, Suicides At Home of Mrs. Samuel Brown.

After first setting fire to his upstairs bedroom and to his bed, Peter Cramblett, 48, ended his life at noon Sunday by shooting himself through the neck with a shotgun charge at the residence of Mrs. Samuel Brown, aged widow, three miles northeast of Darbyville in Muhlenberg-twp.

The suicide occurred while Mrs. Brown was in the kitchen of her home and while her nurse and companion, Mrs. Ida Connelly, Columbus, was in the rear yard.

Cramblett, who had been despondent for several days, attempted to make doubly sure of his suicide.

SPINAL CORD SEVERED

Pouring kerosene on the middle of the floor of his room, he ignited it and then set fire to a corner of his bed, on which he then sat. Placing the muzzle of the shotgun at the base of his throat, Cramblett apparently used his foot to press the trigger, the charge passing through his neck and severing the spinal cord.

Mrs. Brown, who is deaf, did not hear the shot fired, but when Mrs. Connelly returned to the house a few minutes later, she smelled smoke. Going upstairs to investigate, she was blinded by billowing clouds of smoke which filled the upper floor of the house.

Mrs. Connelly ran to the home of Henry Hill, about a half a mile distant, for aid. Hill and other neighbors formed a bucket brigade and extinguished the fire which had burned through the floor of the room and which was smoldering when they arrived.

BOWERS VIEWS BODY

Only when this fire extinguished was the body of Cramblett, clad in underwear, seen on the bed. One corner of the bed had burned away, but the progress of these flames had been checked by a feather tick which had almost smothered the fire. Cramblett's right leg was slightly burned.

Coroner C. E. Bowers, Circleville, was summoned, and after viewing the body, returned a verdict of suicide and ordered C. E. Hill, Williamsport undertaker, to take charge of the body.

Cramblett was the son of the late Mr and Mrs. William Cramblett, of Scioto-twp. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Lawless, of Grove City, and a brother, George Cramblett, of Lancaster.

NEW RATIONS FOR BEEF ARE SOUGHT

Among the 15 Ohio feeders who gathered at the Wooster experiment station, in answer to a call sent out by Paul Gerlaugh, of the animal industry department, were John C. Stevenson and his son, Newell, and H. S. Lewis, county agent.

The object of this school was to outline future experiments to be worked out, to determine the most economic beef rations at the least cost to the Ohio farmer. The subject of beef calves was also given considerable attention.

Various ways of preparing corn and oats with protein conentrates are to be tried out to determine the most economic rations.

Highlights of Cooper Inaugural Address

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14 — Highlights taken from Governor Y. Cooper's inaugural address follow:

I should be untrue to life-long convictions which I hold if I did not on this serious occasion, emphasize my belief in the all-wise Being to whom I shall continually look for inspiration and guidance in directing the affairs of our state.

"There must be general avoidance of that type of legislation which, however well intentioned, disorganizes and demoralizes our industrial and economic life."

The adoption of hasty and ill-considered laws should be avoided. The paths of progress in governmental activity follow a course of clear thinking and sound reasoning.

"The most important safeguard of democracy is an assurance of honest elections."

"There is no greater responsibility than that of encouraging thrift among our people. We must take every precaution to protect their investments."

"We must plan broadly to the end that human suffering may be alleviated and that every possible means be taken to restore, rehabilitate and make comfortable the unfortunates entrusted to state care."

Our assurance for the future is in the sterling character, high purpose and intrinsic worth of our citizens. Let us ever be mindful of our early teachings that there is no excellence without great labor.

"Let us become imbued with the thought that the worth and value of each citizen is measured by the work and effort he is expending in useful occupation.

There is no royalty in America except that which comes in the recognition of a worthy task well performed."

A public policy of economy is of far greater consequence than that of saving money, since its great value lies in the saving of people."

In the face of expanding needs of government the problem which is here and must now be solved is forthwith to put a stop to waste, extravagance and incompetence and to outlaw once and for all favoritism in the management of the people's business.

The motivating purpose which will characterize this administration will be that of a helpful attitude toward all our citizens. Prosperity is fundamental and basic and is a prime requisite to the happiness of the people.

Government can and does play a definite part in producing such conditions; results as well redound to the benefit of all.

It is not for me to say that they shall be obedient only to such laws as those in which they find common ground for agreement. If it is the law then it is the duty of all good citizens to abide thereto for only in this attitude will we be enabled to maintain adequate protection for the people.

Meanwhile Watertown police were searching to question Dr. Kinder.

District Attorney Robert P. Bushnell, declared he would probe all angles of the tragedy.

Neighbors told police, nowever, that Mrs. Ruth had been accepted as Mrs. Kinder for the past year and that the Ruth's nine-year-old daughter had been known as Dorothy Kinder. The wealthy doctor formerly was one of Ruth's best friends.

HOOVER PLANS LIQUOR PROBE

Will Appoint Fact Finding Commission Following His Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—A fact-finding commission, composed of outstanding citizens, to conduct a thorough and non-Partisan investigation into every phase of the prohibition question is to be appointed by Herbert Hoover soon after he steps into the presidency on March 4.

Consideration of the personnel of this commission is occupying almost as much of the president-elect's time as is the consideration of his cabinet appointments. Mr. Hoover is anxious to make the prohibition commission a jury of such outstanding eminence and ability that neither the wets nor the drys can charge prejudice. In the innumerable conferences he has held since returning to Washington, however, he has found that an impartial observer on prohibition is a comparatively rare speciment.

Mr. Hoover wants to make his fact-finding commission representative of American life. With that in view, it is said he is favorable to the idea of a commission of nine, which would include an outstanding business leader, a banker, several lawyers, a physician, a scientist, an economist, an educator, a sociologist, and a labor leader. There probably will be one or more women.

Six Sightseers Are Trapped By 56th Story Fire

NEW YORK, Jan. 14— Trapped by fire in the observation tower of the Woolworth building, nearly 700 feet in the air, while a stiff wind whipped the flames which almost completely cut off the way of escape below!

That was the dilemma in which Miss Margaret Shields, of Bay City, Mich., and five male sightseers found themselves late yesterday when fire broke out in the elevator shaft on the 56th story, just below them. Hundreds of persons on the street below, looking like ants to the six in the tower, watched fascinated.

Then Edward Link, of Sunnyside, N. Y., brother-in-law of Miss Shields, decided to run the gauntlet. He wrapped his overcoat around her and staggered through smoke and fire to safety down the narrow stairway. Two of the other men accompanied them. The last two remained quaking in the tower while firemen climbed eight stories and extinguished the blaze.

The survivors were little the worse today for their thrilling experience. It was the city's highest fire.

SAYS SMITH WAS CHEATED

Gov. Roosevelt Says Al Was Beaten By Bigotry, Ignorance and Lies.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14—Former Gov. Al Smith was "cheated" out of the presidency at the last election by "bigotry, ignorance of Democratic principles, and by the spread by unspeakable and un-American methods of the most atrocious falsehoods," in the opinion of Democratic leaders throughout the country, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt declared in a statement today.

Roosevelt conferred last night at the executive mansion for three hours with Smith on ways and means of making the Democratic party a militant organization, one that will function every day in the year.

Smith is scheduled to deliver a political address Wednesday night to the voters of the country over a national radio hook-up. It is understood he had a heart-to-heart talk with Gov. Roosevelt on the plans to say in his forthcoming radio speech.

This was Smith's first visit to Albany since Roosevelt became governor.

Governor Roosevelt issued his statement summing up the views of the Democrats of the country 24 hours before he knew Smith was coming to confer with him

The board of the Home and Hospital met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Noecker on Watt-st. Mrs. Brinker has been the matron for more than a year.

MUHLENBERG FARMER ENDS LIFE SUNDAY

Peter Cramblett, 48, Suicides At Home of Mrs. Samuel Brown.

After first setting fire to his upstairs bedroom and to his bed, Peter Cramblett, 48, ended his life at noon Sunday by shooting himself through the neck with a shotgun charge at the residence of Mrs. Samuel Brown, aged widow, three miles northeast of Darbyville in Muhlenberg-twp.

The suicide occurred while Mrs. Brown was in the kitchen of her home and while her nurse and companion, Mrs. Ida Connelly, Columbus, was in the rear yard.

Cramblett, who had been despondent for several days, attempted to make doubly sure of his suicide.

SPINAL CORD SEVERED

Pouring kerosene on the middle of the floor of his room, he ignited it and then set fire to a corner of his bed, on which he then sat. Placing the muzzle of the shotgun at the base of his throat, Cramblett apparently used his foot to press the trigger, the charge passing through his neck and severing the spinal cord.

Mrs. Brown, who is deaf, did not hear the shot fired, but when Mrs. Connelly returned to the house a few minutes later, she smelled smoke. Going upstairs to investigate, she was blinded by billowing clouds of smoke which filled the upper floor of the house.

Mrs. Connelly ran to the home of Henry Hill, about a half a mile distant, for aid. Hill and other neighbors formed a bucket brigade and extinquished the fire which had burned through the floor of the room and which was smoldering in the floor joists and wall studding.

BOWERS VIEWS BODY

Only when this fire extinquished was the body of Cramblett, clad in underwear, seen on the bed. One corner of the bed had burned away, but the progress of these flames had been checked by a feather tick which had almost smothered the fire. Cramblett's right leg was slightly burned.

Coroner C. E. Bowers, Circleville, was summoned, and after viewing the body, returned a verdict of suicide and ordered C. E. Hill, Williamsport undertaker, to take charge of the body.

Cramblett was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Cramblett, of Scioto-twp. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Lawless, of Grove City, and a brother, George Cramblett, of Lancaster.

NEW RATIONS FOR BEEF ARE SOUGHT

Among the 15 Ohio feeders who gathered at the Wooster experiment station, in answer to a call sent out by Paul Gerlaugh, of the animal industry department, were John C. Stevenson and his son, Newell, and H. S. Lewis, county agent.

The object of this school was to outline future experiments to be worked out to determine the most economic beef rations at the least cost to the Ohio farmer. The subject of beef calves was also given considerable attention.

Various ways of preparing corn and oats with protein conentrates are to be tried out to determine the most economic rations.

Highlights of Cooper Inaugural Address

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14 — Highlights taken from Governor Y. Cooper's inaugural address follow:

"I should be untrue to life-long convictions which I hold if I did not, on this serious occasion, emphasize my belief in the all-wise Being, to whom I shall continually look for inspiration and guidance in directing the affairs of our state."

"There must be general avoidance of that type of legislation which, however well intentioned, disorganizes and demoralizes our industrial and economic life."

"The adoption of hasty and ill-considered laws should be avoided. The paths of progress in governmental activity follow a course of clear thinking and sound reasoning."

"The most important safeguard of democracy is an assurance of honest elections."

"There is no greater responsibility than that of encouraging thrift among our people. We must take every precaution to protect their investments."

"We must plan broadly to the end that human suffering may be alleviated and that every possible means be taken to restore, rehabilitate and make comfortable the unfortunates entrusted to state care."

"Our assurance for the future is in the sterling character, high purpose and intrinsic worth of our citizens. Let us ever be mindful of our early teachings that there is no excellence without great labor."

"Let us become imbued with the thought that the worth and value of each citizen is measured by the work and effort he is expending in useful occupation."

"There is no royalty in America except that which comes in the recognition of a worthy task well performed."

"A public policy of economy is of far greater consequence than that of saving money since its great value lies in the saving of people."

"In the face of expanding needs of government, the problem which is here and must now be solved is forthwith to put a stop to waste, extravagance and incompetence, and to outlaw, once and for all, favoritism in the management of the people's business."

"The motivating purpose which will characterize this administration will be that of a helpful attitude toward all our citizens. Prosperity is fundamental and basic, and is a prime requisite to the happiness of the people."

"Government can, and does, play a definite part in producing such beneficient results as will redound to the benefit of all."

"It is not for men to say that they shall be obedient only to such laws as those in which they find common ground for agreement. If it is the law, then it is the obligation of all good citizens to be obedient thereto for only in this attitude will we be enabled to maintain adequate protection for the people."

Ohio State Quintet Is Nearing Top In Race

PURDUE AND MICHIGAN IN LEAGUE LEAD

Boilermakers and Wolverines Are Undefeated in Big Ten Basketball.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 — Michigan and Purdue today were "and neck" in the vangard of Big Ten teams racing for the western conference basketball championship. Both have won three games and lost none. Michigan, on the basis of opposition conquered, rates a slightly favorite over the Boilermakers.

Close on the heels of this pair, waiting to take advantage of the first slipup, are four tough quintets who have lost only one game each to date. They are Ohio State, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana. The first two named have two victories each to their credit, while Iowa and Indiana have only one.

Illinois comes next in the standings with one victory and two defeats. The other three teams, Minnesota, Chicago and Northwestern, have not yet crashed the "games won" column.

The Hawkeyes left the ranks of the undefeated Saturday night when Michigan rung up its third successive trimuph, 36 to 25. The game was played on Iowa's own floor. Purdue kept pace with the powerful Wolverine five by trouncing Northwestern at Lafayette, 46 to 30.

Ohio State followed close up in the race by beating Illinois, 27 to 22. Wisconsin kept abreast of the Buckeyes with a 33 to 21 victory over Chicago. Indiana managed to "luck out" over Minnesota by the margin of one point. The score was 37 to 36.

With only one day to rest up, all ten teams were scheduled to get back into the fray tonight. The following games are carded: Northwestern at Ohio State, Minnesota at Iowa, Chicago at Purdue, Illinois at Michigan and Indiana at Wisconsin.

FOR EIGHT YEARS PAIN HELD SWAY; KONJOLA TRIUMPHS

Terrible Rheumatism and Distressing Kidney Trouble Routed By Six Bottles of Konjola.

MR. AUGUST BERMHART

Konjola's success is due to the fact that its 32 ingredients, working singly and together, go directly to the source, the cause of the ailment. Organs are cleansed and stimulated; the system is cleared of poisons, and soon comes new health, glorious and permanent.

"For eight years I suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble," says Mr. August Bermhart, 410 East Fifth street, Dover, Ohio. "The pains I endured were beyond words. For these eight years I could not work, as the rheumatism crippled my legs. At night I had to rise as many as eight times because of my kidneys. Everyone knows how I suffered, for I have lived in Dover 20 years. Konjola was so strongly recommended that I felt that I should give it a trial. Certainly it could fail no more completely than all other medicines had. But this Konjola fooled me. In six weeks, after taking six bottles, I was completely well, with my kidneys functioning correctly and every sign of rheumatism gone. Work is a joy, and no wonder, after eight agonizing years of pain and idleness. And I am astounded when I think that Konjola did all this for me in six weeks."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, O., at Myerrantz Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Peter Pund of Georgia Tech can look back upon his final football season with gratification afforded few gridiron stars.

Roy Riegels of California must be looking ahead to his last year with some trepidation.

The final game of the 1928 season, played as usual in 1929, on New Year's Day at the Pasadena Rose Bowl, brought Pund's football career to a glorious finish, and plunged poor Riegels into the depths.

Pund was deservedly a unanimous choice as All-American center of 1928. More than that, he captained the one really outstanding eleven of the season to go through its schedule and its post-season engagements without being once defeated or tied.

Leadership must necessarily have played a prominent part in the success of the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech. The lessons taught by 1928 are that few elevens indeed could hope to maintain the peak of form week after week.

Georgia Tech did that, and finally trampled on the pride of California and down the Golden Bears, 8 to 7.

Pund proved himself one of the greatest centers that ever wore moleskins, or silk, or whatever they wear in these effete days on the gridiron. He was a 210 pound rhinosceros on the attact, and a 210 pound grizzly bear on the defense. When he hit, a hole opened, and when he dumped a runner, the runner stayed dumped.

Riegels himself was a first class center, but he got up against Pund in the Georgia Tech-California game, and after a period of beating Roy became so rattled that he grabbed up a fumble and ran 75 yards the wrong way, being just prevented from going over his own goal line and scoring a safety for his opponents. A moment later, Georgia Tech did get two points for a safety, and those two points won the game for the Golden Tornado. Riegels left the door ajar and the Tornado blew right in to victory.

The success of Georgia Tech this season was remarkabe, since no other eleven in the country could duplicate it. Peter Pund was the pillar around which the sensational attack and fighting defense of the Yellow Jackets revolved. With Pund in the line were such stalwarts as Drennon, Speers, Waddey and Jones, while the backfield was just about the country's best with Warner Mizell, "Stumpy" Thomason and "Father" Lumpkin.

There was another all-American lineman on the field that day of the Tournament of Roses—Captain Phillips of California, who fought brilliantly to stem the Tornado, and scored the Bears' lone touchdown on a forward pass. Phillips was end on the leading All-American teams, and lived right up to his reputation on New Year's Day.

The chances are that Riegels will come back to play able football as California's captain next fall. He can never live down the memories of his run, but he is a courageous gridiron leader, as he showed by his conduct in the Georgia Tech game when he returned to the frey. Riegels got past Pund to block one kick at an important juncture.

It is unfortunate that Georgia Tech was not matched with some good eastern teams this past season, but the Tornado needs no further comparison to prove its greatness.

DOPE BUCKET STANDS AFTER OHIO CLASHES

Basketball Games Among Ohio Colleges Ended About As Expected.

Basketball games in the three conferences went about as expected in the three week-end contests. Ohio Wesleyan and Denison were atop the Buckeye conference standings and Toledo and Finley ahead in the Northwest conference. The Ohio conference group is considerable jumbled in its standings, and is no title is awarded, why worry about it?

Ohio Wesleyan and Dennison boast one victory each over members of the Big Six, and have no losses. O. W. downed Ohio university Saturday 48 to 29. Denison has previously walloped Wittenberg. Cincinnati won from Miami Saturday to boost its percentage to .500 and into a tie with the Lutherans. Ohio U and Miami hold the cellar positions of one lost and none won.

Defiance and Bluffton, having lost to Findlay and Toledo, respectively, hold second place in the Northwest conference in as much as Bowling Green, the other league team, has not been in action against conference foes as yet. Bowling Green and Findlay are to clash Wednesday. Defiance and Bluffton went out of the conference Saturday to drop decisions to Kent and Wilberforce respectively.

In the Ohio conference over the week-end, both Cleveland entries lost. Western Reserve went down before Akron and Case dropped one to Wooster. Marietta came back strong to hand Kenyon a licking, while little Baldwin-Wallace nosed out Ohio Northern by one point.

FIREMEN RUSH TO POICEMAN'S AID

With the temperature nice and low, the local fire department made three breezy runs in 24 hours. The damage in all three cases was slight.

The department was called to the home of William McCrady, on E. Franklin-st shortly after noon Monday to extinguish a blaze on the room directly above the bath room. A hole about three feet square had to be cut in the roof to reach the flames.

DOPE BUCKET STANDS AFTER OHIO CLASHES

Basketball Games Among Ohio Colleges Ended About As Expected.

Basketball games in the three conferences went about as expected in the three week-end contests. Ohio Wesleyan and Denison were atop the Buckeye conference standings and Toledo and Finley ahead in the Northwest conference. The Ohio conference group is considerable jumbled in its standings, and is no title is awarded, why worry about it?

Ohio Wesleyan and Dennison boast one victory each over members of the Big Six, and have no losses. O. W. downed Ohio university Saturday 48 to 29. Denison has previously walloped Wittenberg. Cincinnati won from Miami Saturday to boost its percentage to .500 and into a tie with the Lutherans. Ohio U and Miami hold the cellar positions of one lost and none won.

Defiance and Bluffton, having lost to Findlay and Toledo, respectively, hold second place in the Northwest conference in as much as Bowling Green, the other league team, has not been in action against conference foes as yet. Bowling Green and Findlay are to clash Wednesday. Defiance and Bluffton went out of the conference Saturday to drop decisions to Kent and Wilberforce respectively.

In the Ohio conference over the week-end, both Cleveland entries lost. Western Reserve went down before Akron and Case dropped one to Wooster. Marietta came back strong to hand Kenyon a licking, while little Baldwin-Wallace nosed out Ohio Northern by one point.

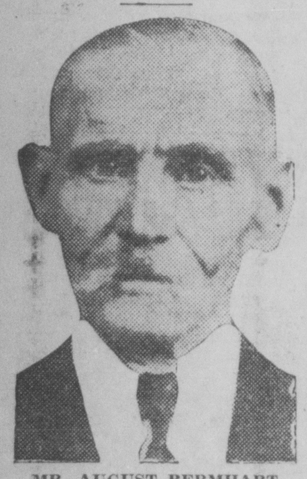
FOR EIGHT YEARS PAIN HELD SWAY; KONJOLA TRIUMPHS

Terrible Rheumatism and Distressing Kidney Trouble Routed By Six Bottles of Konjola.



MR. AUGUST BERMHART

Konjola's success is due to the fact that its 32 ingredients, working singly and together, go directly to the source, the cause of the ailment. Organs are cleansed and stimulated; the system is cleared of poisons, and soon comes new health, glorious and permanent.

"For eight years I suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble," says Mr. August Bermhart, 410 East Fifth street, Dover, Ohio. "The pains I endured were beyond words. For these eight years I could not work, as the rheumatism crippled my legs. At night I had to rise as many as eight times because of my kidneys. Everyone knows how I suffered, for I have lived in Dover 20 years. Konjola was so strongly recommended that I felt that I should give it a trial. Certainly it could fail no more completely than all other medicines had. But this Konjola fooled me. In six weeks, after taking six bottles, I was completely well, with my kidneys functioning correctly and every sign of rheumatism gone. Work is a joy, and no wonder, after eight agonizing years of pain and idleness. And I am astounded when I think that Konjola did all this for me in six weeks."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, O., at Mykrantz Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

FRIDAY CHAPEL

Chapel was held Friday afternoon during physical education period for the purpose of presenting pins to the new Quill and Scroll members. Alice Roof gave an exceptionally good talk concerning the Quill and Scroll club. After this she presented pins to the new members, Helen Yates, editor; Helen Kinser, poetry writer; John Heiskell and Donald Rader, sports editors, and Freda Dowden, chief typist.

Compliments may be showered upon Donald Rader's attaining membership in his sophomore year as this is extraordinary. Members are required to be of junior standing, but for exceptionally good work he was made a good member by special act of the national council. He did not wait for material to be brought to him but went to hunt it himself. He started in the freshman year to take journalism and worked hard, thus achieving his goal early.

Speeches of acceptance were made by each of the new members. Miss Wittich led the entire student body in a few songs The cheer leaders then appeared on the stage and conducted a "Ho2" pep anticipating the evening's games.

MONDAY CHAPEL

Chapel exercises were held in the high school auditorium, Monday morning.

Miss Wittich opened the period by having the assembly sing in mass.

Mr. Gephart explained the necessity of paying particular attention to the absent forms and tardy excuses. No one is to enter the building before the entrance bell in the morning and at noon unless a written excuse is given by a teacher.

Mr. Gephart then introduced Rev. De Camp of the Episcopal church. The subject of his talk was "Organization for Service." He stressed the point that organization means strength. Our school is so organized that the students are fitted mentally, morally and physically to withstand life's battles. Rev. De Camp said, "This is a day of organization and consolidation in the business world." We should organize especially for unselfish service. If this is accomplished we can reap better benefits in all walks of life.

MANUAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT

The 7th grade classes are at the present time being initiated into their woodwork course after having completed their tex-tbook and drawing work.

The 8th grade classes have about finished their required practice pieces in wood turning and are ready to begin work on their sewing cabinets.

The freshmen are making good headway on their footstools which is one of their required projects.

A project is being taken up by one young man, namely John Caldwell, who is making a duck boat. It is a project which has not been made by any of the students for several years. John is making a good showing so far.

FRAT ENTERTAINED

Monday evening, Jan. 7. Misses Kuhlman and Louis Ferribly were hostesses to the Epsilon Mu Sigma, in the domestic science rooms. After a short business meeting, Miss Kuhlman gave a review of a very interesting book, "This Side Idolatry," which deals with the private life of Charles Dickens. After hearing this delightful review, the members gained a different idea of Dickens and his peculiar ideals Delightful and amusing games were played. After delicious refreshments, all bid the hostesses goodnight, having spent a wonderful evening.

RESERVE CONFERENCE

On Feb. 16, the Girl Reserves of Central Ohio will meet in Columbus Conference always means for Girl Reserves not only a chance to make new friends but to discover a little more about the adventure of real living and about the square Girl Reserves may have in building a world of friendliness and good will.

The conference will open with registration at nine o'clock. There will be exhibits of Reserve material that will be of help in program building.

The program is under the direction of a planning committee composed of girls and advisors from Columbus and several towns in the districts.

When the letter concerning the conference was read to C. H S. Girl Reserves, everyone seemed to favor the home club attending the all day session of the conference, but it will not be decided until early next week whether representatives from C. H S. Girl Reserves will be in Columbus that Saturday.

MUSIC ON THE WANE

The head of the musical side of life in C. H. S says that things are right calm for a spell. After singing in the All State Chorus, there seems to come a vacation to those gifted with bird-like voices.

Miss Wittich claims that the Glee Club, although not very active at present, will be up and starting during the coming week.

The lady that always selects No 5 (America) as the first song in assembly, says that there's no need to worry about the music department 'cause she isn't. The only thing on her mind besides her hairnet is the fact that she has to have her "pitcher" taken for the annual—her reasons were "Nil."

THE SUMMONS

The best pal, best friend, loyal and true
Generous, full of fun laughing always
Noble hearted, sympathetic, willing to do
My world is unhappy, she's summoned away
But if I could dispell the mysterious veil
That shrouds the world unknown
Just part the curtains once, even at risk
And see where the soul has flown
I think in God's reckoning—she will stand
Not one who is lost—just roamed.
God saw his earth children growing careless
Of the value of this beautiful soul
That the joyful mirth she scattered
Was lost on a world grown cold
So a summons he sent to Mother Earth
For a child of laughter and song
That we the careless, might know her worth
That without her—our world would seem wrong
And make the sun lose its splendor
Makes the night's unbearably long.
We miss her—all our pent up longing
Cries out for her, who is gone away
We strave for the soul of her voice
Which we heard the other day
The niches her going leaves vacant
Can never be filled by an other
By the love of an angershed mother.

The summons it came so swiftly
On the fast wings of the night
Taking her and leaving us nothing
And resumed its onward flight
We, to again take up our burdens
In the year so newly begun
Having only the wonderful friendship
Of a loved one, whose race is run.
—Helen Kinser.

The freshmen science classes are engaged in writing themes, the topics of which are given in "Current Science" weekly. This week Robert Greenlee submitted the best. The following is his theme:

"The Editor of the "Current Science" paper sent a Christmas card to a boy in Buenos Aires with a picture of snowdrifts, a sleigh, bare limbs of oak trees and evergreens beneath. The boy wrote back and said, "Everything about your Christmas card is wrong!" By this he meant that the snowdrifts and other winter scenery were not proper for a picture on a Christmas card in his, the southern, hemisphere. The southern hemispliere has summer while the northern hemispher has winter due to the inclination and parallelism of the earth's axis.

The second best theme was submitted by Georgia Leist. The following is Georgia's theme:

"The reason the card seemed all wrong to the person in Argentina was due to the differences in climate.

At this time of year the sun is below the equator and is thus summer.

To receive a card with sleighs, snowdrifts, bear limbs of an oak tree ,and evergreens on it in summer would seem just as queer to us as it did to them.

SHIP'S FATE

I oft' sat by the river.
And watched the ships go by,
Glde smoothly as the sun by day,
Crossing the deep blue sky.

Oh! truly they were beauteous sights
Those ships sailing to the sea—
Like fairy barges on a golden lake
Sailing to eternity.

But those self-same ships that looked so grand
Were men of war—a hostile band—
Bent upon some prey I know not where
But I do know there will be fighting there.

And I oft' have wondered of that gloreous fleet
Had obtained success, or met defeat.
And I shudder when I think of the probable fate
That met those sailors in some dangerous strait.
—Alice Roof

LIFE

Have you ever arose in the morning.
And seen the sun rise, too?
Have you ever thought of his troubles
As he speeds across the blue?

Have you ever stood on a hilltop.
And wathed the sun to bed?
Have you ever observed the glory
That over this earth he spreads?

Have you ever been on the ocean.
And watched God turn on his lights,
To guide the weary traveler
Across the desert of night?

The sun of the morning is childhood.
The glow in the west success.
The stars of the night—the treasure
God gives us before our rest.

God gives to his children a blessing.
More precious than gold tis' to me
If you fail to see God in his glory
Don't blame him—He's there for you to see.
—Alice Roof

LOVE

'Tis said that love's most precious,
More precious than jewels rare.
But those who play the game of love
Seldom play it on the square.

Yea! 'true love is most precious,
The most precious thing on earth.
But the people of the land, today,
Regard it with laughter,' and with merth.

The love that is rightfully true love
Is the love that will sacrifice
Not only the glory of living,
But the horror of giving life.
—Alice Roof.

LAUGH IT OFF

When you are troubled very much
And always get in "dutch"
Laugh it off
You will find clouds roll away
All your night then turns day
Laugh it off.

When your "lizzie" balks and stops
And your big idea flopes
Laugh it off
You will find things goes your way
Thro the sky shines down a ray
Laugh it off.

When everything seems blue
And your best friend proves untrue
Laugh it off
New friends you'll surely make
Real ones—not all fakes.
—Helen Kinser.

Father—Esther— it's 11 o'clock.
Esther—Yes, I know father, but Malcolm's watch isn't going.

Father—Well, how about Malcolm?

Father—How is it that you failed in every subject at school?

Wilbur Adkins:—I had an absent minded professor and he forgot to pass me.

Mother — I don't like to hear that my little girl is at the bottom of the class.

D. S.—It isn't my fault. The girl that's always at the bottom is at home sick.

Helen Crist—Who is that fellow with the long hair?

Ruth Stout— He's a fellow from Yale.

Helen—Oh, I've often heard of those Yale locks.

Miss Mattinson—What do we mean when we say the whole is greater than any of its parts?

Oscar Reynolds—One of my aunt's doughnuts.

Mr. Kirwin—Pat, why are your marks so low since Xmas?

Pat—Well, everything is marked down after the holidays.

Mr. Strawser— "Clinton, every time you are bad I get another gray hair."

Clinton— "Well, you must have been a corker. Look at Grandpa."

Skipper Davis — This boat makes 15 knots an hour.

Freshman—Who unties them?

Jeanette Bowers— "How is Loring Peters getting along in school?"

Mr. Peters— "Fine! I bought him a roadster and he make the grades easily."

Wilbur Adkins— "Hey, You're on some jokes I cut out."

Hugh Cartright—"I thought I felt something funny.

Harriet Mason—"What are you taking for your cold?

Marjorie Hunsicker—"Make me an offer."

Mr. Fetherlin— "Andrew, can you tell me what a hypocrite is?

Andrew Goeller— "Yes, Sir it is a boy what comes to school with a smile on his face."

"Oh, what a strange looking cow! exclaimed Mary Dalton. "But why hasn't it any horns?"

"Well, you see, explained Olive Weaver's dad, "some cows are born without horns and never have them, and others shed theirs, and some dehorn, and some breeds are not supposed to have horns at all. There's lot of reasons why some cows don't have horns, but the big reason why that cow doesn't have horns is because she isn't a cow she's a horse."

Mr. Watts— Joseph, what do you know about nitrates?

Albert Hoffman— Well, I know they are less than day rates.

"Sheriff."—said the minister reprovingly, "did you catch these fish today?"

"Ye—es sir," answered Harold. "That's what they get for chasing worms on Sunday."

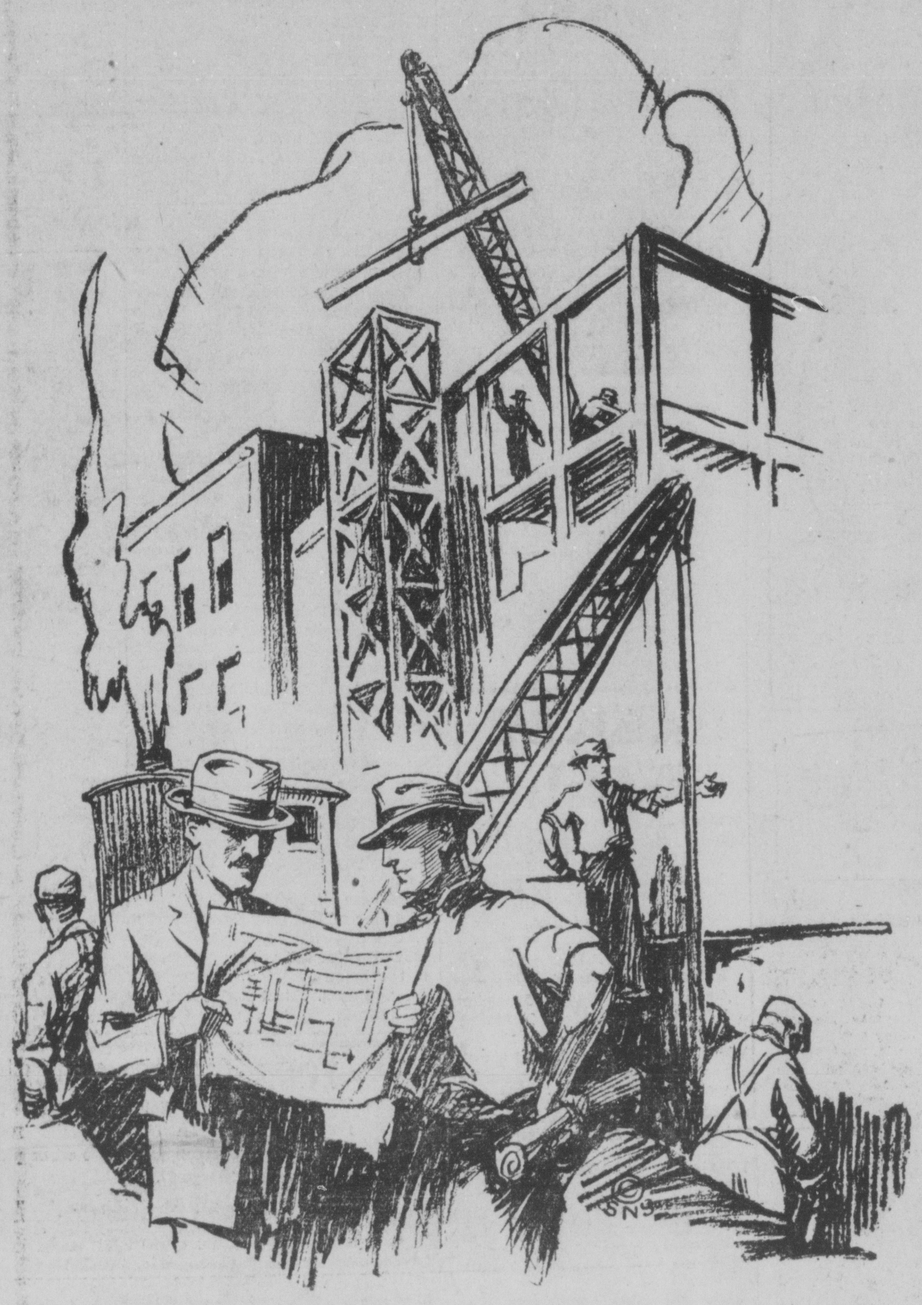
Circleville WILL GROW



It is only natural that our community should aspire to greater progress. And to move forward on the Road to Progress, Circleville must have:

More Prosperity
More Population
More Industries
More Capital
More Trade

Getting these things takes more than mere "boosting" by word of mouth. It takes definite action on the part of every loyal citizen in this community.

More population will come when we have convinced desirable outsiders that we have a morally and physically clean town, good churches and schools, efficient stores and opportunities for themselves and their children.

More industries and more capital will be glad to locate here if we show them that Circleville offers them natural, commercial and civic advantages favorable to their businesses.

More trade and prosperity will come with increased population and added industries as well as by our present citizens being loyal in patronizing home merchants and professional people.

Only when every man, woman and child here gives ACTIVE CO-operation to our campaign of building a better community—will Circleville realize its civic ambitions.

DRIVING TOO SLOWLY

A New York man who persisted in driving along a busy street at a very slow speed was arrested and taken to court by a patrolman; and even though the judge was obliged to free him because he could find no law prohibiting slow driving, we're inclined to think that the officer who made the arrest was dead right.

When we talk about the dangers of traffic we usually mention the speeder first of all. But the slow-poke is often just as big a danger—and an even bigger nuisance.

It is the slow-poke who causes people to break out of traffic lanes in an effort to make reasonable time; and this breaking out of traffic lanes causes nobody knows how many accidents. The slow-poke also is responsible for the custom of passing on the right —another source of crashes. On all busy streets he should be eliminated; and, if as in New York, there is no law to cover his case, one ought to be passed, pronto.

THE CHINESE MARKET.

An article in the current Magazine of Wall Street emphasizes the enormous potentialities of the Chinese market as a field for American exporters.

There are 400,000,000 people in China. The vast majority of these people, at present, use almost nothing that does not come from their own vicinity. But the new regime in China, seeking to rehabilitate the country, have great plans for raising its economic level. They are now projecting a $10,000,000 road building program and hope it will be merely the first step in general awakening.

It is easy to figure out the tremendous demand for goods that will come if these 400,000,000 Chinese are lifted even slightly in the economic scale. American industrialists who are prompt in cultivating the Chinese field stand to reap huge dividends a few years from now.

FEEDING SCHOOLS LARGELY ATTENDED

Approximately 160 persons attended the series of dairy feeder schools held during the past week at Walnut, Harrison and Saltcreek twps, and at Williamsport, Stoutsville and Circleville. The schools were to show the importance of protein supplements to corn, oats, and barley rations fed to cows.

The schools were held under the direction of H. S. Lewis, county agent, and Ivan McKellip, dairy specialist of Ohio State university.

JOHN GOELLER, JR. IS CRITICALLY ILL

The condition of John Goeller Jr., who is ill at his home on Montclair-ave, remains critical. He had been running a temperature of 106 for two days, and on Sunday this dropped to 99 degrees. Dr. J. J. Brundage, of Columbus, was called, and said that Mr. Goeller had small chance of recovery, but that there would be no crisis in the disease. He would either gradually grow worse or better. He has been delirious for four days.

MID-WINTER BLUES

The hired man's shucked the corn and got
The fire wood cut and stacked
My nephew's done the butchering
The seed wheat's all been sacked.

The boys have fixed the fences up
They've seen that stock is fed,
My wife is busy now with plans
To dig her garden bed.

And so I sit all day and think
Of town folks and its riles
Me up the way they do not know
About the farmer's trials.

There were fewer marriages last year than the year before, and fewer the year before than there were the year before that, and the great thinkers of the country say this is a good sign. Fewer marriages mean, in the long run, fewer children, and fewer children means a lessened population and that, they assert, is a fine thing. They believe that the average of intelligence will go up with the smaller output. Fewer and smarter kids is the slogan. Perhaps they are right. One knows so little in this world that it may be that the theory that if People Can't Be as Nice as Us, Let's have No People at All is correct. Maybe it would be a better world without any folks. But if there are to be no young people, what will us elderly guys have to complain about?

"I was dazzled by him," sobbed a young thing in court the other day. "He had a big automobile and a new fur coat, and I thought he was wonderful."

The young lady was eternally right. If women don't fall for big cars and bear skin coats then what is the use of anything? Wab, shiek of the Stone Age, knocked 'em cold because he had a necklace of walrus teeth, Solomon strutted all his stuff for Balkis and Samuel Pepys paraded down Picadilly to show his new surtout. The lad with the big car and the 'coon skin coat, and the girl who fell for him, were both running true to form.

The returns show that 229 people in the United States have incomes exceeding a million. Who would have thought that that many people were writing columns?

Six months ago it was officially announced that beginning Jan. 1, 1929, the treasury department would issue bills in smaller sizes, and bills of the present size would be recalled. We have allowed all of our old size bills to get out of our possession, but where's the new ones? We trust the government wil take immediate steps, as an emergency, not to say a panic, exists.

Some day we will heat our homes by radio, they say. Then how we will cuss the static!

It is said that men are returning to whiskers because of the increasing masculinity of women's styles, growing whiskers being one thing (probably the only thing) that women can not do. This announcement does not come from the safety razor manufacturers.

For the comparatively reasonable sum of $2 one can purchase, according to the advertisements, a book that "solves all of the nation's problems." This price seems fair. We would pay $2, for example, just to solve the problem of getting more money for less work. If the book is sold on reasonable terms we can be argued with.

"America lacks the art impulse," says the Duke of Rochester. It is unfortunate that the duke left our shores before the recent pancake eating contest at Rahway, N. J., in which the Champ consumed 87 in 42 minutes. Art? We revel in it.

And a man in Fergus Falls, Minn., has just succeeded in drinking 85 cups of coffee in seven hours and 15 minutes. These two fellers should get together.

A woman in Hollywood has horsewhipped a man, and every newspaper in the land is speeding special correspondents to the spot to find out where she got hold of a horsewhip.

Peaks of Desire
by Kane O Day

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, reporter, falls in love with Ann Tremaine, wealthy debutante. He takes her to live at his boarding house, and she is attracted to Steve Harrison, a husky mechanic of whom Jerry is jealous. Ann gets a job in a theatre owned by Nick Pagalos, a Greek. Shortly after, Maizie Thompson, an ex-sweetheart of Steve's appears on the scene. She accuses Ann of having stolen Steve from her, but Steve denies this, saying he does not love Maizie. A friendship develops between Jerry and Maizie, and one evening the four of them go out together. The party is a failure and Ann is hurt by Jerry's attentions to Maizie. When Steve tells her he comes of an old Virginia family she begins to think of him more seriously. They walk home and she goes to Jerry's room. When he spends the rest of the evening talking about Maizie Ann realizes he is no longer interested in her. She wipes the tears from her eyes and, exhausted, falls asleep in Jerry's armchair.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLVII.

ALL through the night Jerry watched over Ann.

She was curled up in the soft deep chair; for the first time he realized how small she was physically. Her independence of spirit fell away from her in slumber. There was a helplessness in her soft-breathing unconsciousness that stirred in him a deep well of tenderness. She had felt herself to be so important—so vitally concerned with Life—and, when her velvet edge of freshness had been consumed she lost every vestige of independence. Like a child she had tumbled off to sleep.

He marveled that she could rest so completely in what, for him, would have been such an uncomfortable position. The strain she had been under, the endurance against the battering vitality of Steve Harrison, must have burned up far more of her resistance than he realized. This was something deeper than sleep . . . it was exhaustion . . .

The recollection that he had boasted to her of his regard for Mazie Thompson filled him with a self-loathing. It had been just that—boasting. He had bragged of his interest in the factory girl —had deliberately shouted a lot of nonsense and had stooped even to color it with the false intensity of earnestness.

The truth was that he had meant scarcely a word he had said about Maizie. It had all been bluff—a protective strategy to cover up his humiliation at Ann's evident preference for Steve.

Maizie had interested him nowhere nearly as much as he had pretended. True, she had a superficial novelty of appeal but he had magnified it out of all reason in talking with Ann. The artistic strain in his nature had been rather pleased with the effect of realism he had attained. He had given a good performance, nothing more.

Although he had meant only to protect his feelings and hide his hurt, there was just a dash of satisfaction in the thought that Ann had been jealous. In this there was a little balm for his ego.

But he meant to hold to his course of steady calmness—to steer evenly and wait for the breaks. He might win with Ann or he might lose. Things could not go on forever in the present way. A crisis would come—as a man he would match himself against Steve Harrison. The better man would win.

Until then, Jerry decided, the wisest plan was to conceal his feelings, to give Ann her head. He was able now to consider the whole case with a forced calmness—a triumph of his will over his emotion. If the breaks in luck favored him, Ann might of her own accord tire of Steve. That would be best—to let her find her own way out. It was, of course, a risk, but it had to be taken.

"If I let myself get wrought up about all this," he told himself, "I'll weaken myself in her eyes. If I criticize Steve it will drive her all the closer to him."

"I'm just common clay," he persuaded himself, "but she has a touch of the Divine."

To think of losing her was so unbearable that he rigidly excluded the prospect from his mind.

"It's up to me to stand the gaff and keep a stiff upper lip," he would murmur hotly. "The wine of freedom has gone to her head and she's dizzy with Life. But I'm the man. I've got to lie and pretend and overlook things—but I've got to win!"

He wondered if other men in love were tortured by such harrowing sensations—if they, too, were driven to paltry deceptions and humiliations. For one thing he was thankful—he was spared the ultimate agony of jealousy. In quite an old-fashioned way he trusted her. She was, fundamentally, chaste. Luckily, he did not know the dangerous dreams that Steve sometimes awakened in her. Lucky . . .

As a newspaper man Jerry had lived in a revolving maze of experiences. Like most of his profession, he had developed a hard outer shell, but, inwardly, he was capable of immeasurable purity of thought. Ann, in his eyes, was almost too holy, too spiritualized, to have a kinship with the rest of the world in the flesh.

In his lover's imagination he was beginning to lose all sense of sordidness—to elevate her to a pedestal. This, though, was only in his secret dreams; the practical part of his mind kept telling him she was, after all, only a girl, even though there was not another on earth like her. He realized the necessity of a planned strategy—a kind of watchful waiting—but inwardly he gave himself up to a swimming idealism. He could lie to her about his interest in Maizie and not feel at all like a hypocrite.

"I'm just common clay," he persuaded himself, "but she has a touch of the Divine."

It might have astonished him to know that Steve Harrison felt the same way about Ann. It was an effect she sometimes had upon men. Then, again, others found her quite easily within range of other emotions. Nick Pagalos, for instance.

Sometimes during the night Steve would stretch himself upon the davenport and sleep for minutes at a time, supremely thrilled and elated at her presence in the room with him. Sometimes he would stand over her and watch her soft breathing. He would sit by the window and smoke, nourished by an exquisite sense of companionship. Ann was spending the night in his room, but there was not the slightest feeling of illicitness in his mind. It was a dear experience, a precious accident.

"But it might be hard to make an outsider believe it was all on the square," he mused. "And I used to think I was hard boiled!"

THEATRES

NEGRI AND J ANNINGS

Pola Negri and Emil Jennings are starred at the Grand theater tonight in "Passion."

This picture is a dramatic masterpiece, the story of DuBarry, a King's favorite, who rose from lowly rank to an envied position in the Royal palaces, and then met a horribl fate when the man who had taught her love and luxury leaves her to the mercy of a heartless world. A Universal comedy will also be shown.

"DREAM OF LOVE"

Joan Crawford, screenland's living symbol of jazzmania, has deserted the ranks of flapperdom for the exotic heights of romantic intrigue in "Dream of Love," at the Metropolitan theater as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature.

The shingle-bobbed, sun bronzed dance suppled madcap of cinemaland comes before us in this modernization of "Adrienne Lecouxreou," famous old French play, and plays the dramatic role in which the great Sarah Bernhardt starred for many seasons in European capitals.

Nils Asther, who captured so many feminine hearts in "Her Cardboard Lover," is seen opposite Miss Crawford and joins with her in giving performances of striking strength and dramatic power. Certainly, they are magnificently capable as the strolling gypsy player and incognito prince, and with such players as Aileen Pringle, Warner Oland and Carmel Myers in the elaborate supporting cast, the screen play brings out some splendid character portrayals.

OBITUARY

Isabelle Friend, daughter of Oren, and his wife, Anna Steel Friend, was born in Hocking-co, Nov. 28, 1859, and died Jan. 6, 1929, aged 69 years, one month and eight days.

On Jan. 1, 1880, she was married to Luther Noggle and to this union three children were born one girl and two boys. The girl, Stella Noggle, died at the age of two years.

At the age of 17 Mrs. Noggle united with the Methodist church in Hocking-co and remained a faithful member for 10 years, when she transferred her membership to the United Brethren church. She had been a loyal member of the United Brethren church here in Circleville for 32 years.

Mrs. Noggle was greatly interested in religious and mission work and gave much of her time to its promotion. She organized a Sunday school in her own home which later led to the founding of the Mission church in the north part of Circleville.

She is survived by her husband; two sons, Harley, of Circelville and Simon of Columbus, Ohio; two sisters, Elizabeth Friend of Laurelville, Ohio, and Mrs. Eliza Culp of Lancaster, Ohio; three grandchildren, and many neighbors and friends who will all feel deeply their loss.

Card of Thanks

To our friends we wish to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation for the many kind expressions of sympathy and the assistance so freely given during the illness and after the death of Mrs. Luther Noggle.

DRIVING TOO SLOWLY

A New York man who persisted in driving along a busy street at a very slow speed was arrested and taken to court by a patrolman; and even though the judge was obliged to free him because he could find no law prohibiting slow driving; we're inclined to think that the officer who made the arrest was dead right.

When we talk about the dangers of traffic we usually mention the speeder first of all. But the slow-poke is often just as big a danger—and an even bigger nuisance.

It is the slow-poke who causes people to break out of traffic lanes in an effort to make reasonable time; and this breaking out of traffic lanes causes nobody knows how many accidents. The slow-poke also is responsible for the custom of passing on the right another source of crashes. On all busy streets he should be eliminated; and, if as in New York, there is no law to cover his case, one ought to be passed, pronto.

THE CHINESE MARKET.

An article in the current Magazine of Wall Street emphasizes the enormous potentialities of the Chinese market as a field for American exporters.

There are 400,000,000 people in China. The vast majority of these people, at present, use almost nothing that does not come from their own vicinity. But the new regime in China, seeking to rehabilitate the country, have great plans for raising its economic level. They are now projecting a $10,000,000 road building program and hope it will be merely the first step in general awakening.

It is easy to figure out the tremendous demand for goods that will come if these 400,000,000 Chinese are lifted even slightly in the economic scale. American industrialists who are prompt in cultivating the Chinese field stand to reap huge dividends a few years from now.

To dig her garden bed.

And so I sit all day and think
Of town folks and its ries

About the farmer's trials.

There were fewer marriages last year than the year before, and fewer the year before than there were the year before that, and the great thinkers of the country say this is a good sign. Fewer marriages mean, in the long run, fewer children, and fewer children means a lessened population and that, they assert, is a fine thing. They believe that the average of intelligence will go up with the smaller output. Fewer and smarter kids is the slogan. Perhaps they are right. One knows so little in this world that it may be that the theory that if People Can't Be as Nice as Us, Let's have No People at All is correct. Maybe it would be a better world without any folks. But if there are to be no young people, what will us elderly guys have to complain about?

"I was dazzled by him," sobbed a young thing in court the other day. "He had a big automobile and a new fur coat, and I thought he was wonderful."

The young lady was eternally right. If women don't fall for big cars and bear skin coats then what is the use of anything? Wab. shiek of the Stone Age, knocked 'em cold because he had a necklace of walrus teeth, Solomon strutted all his stuff for Balkis and Samuel Pepys paraded down Picadilly to show his new surtout. The lad with the big car and the 'coon skin coat, and the girl who fell for him, were both running true to form.

The returns show that 229 people in the United States have incomes exceeding a million. Who would have thought that that many people were writing columns?

Six months ago it was officially announced that beginning Jan. 1, 1929, the treasury department would issue bills in smaller sizes, and bills of the present size would be recalled. We have allowed all of our old size bills to get out of our possession, but where's the new ones? We trust the government wil take immediate steps, as an emergency, not to say a panic, exists

For the comparatively reasonable sum of $2 one can purchase, according to the advertisements, a book that "solves all of the nation's problems." This price seems fair We would pay $2. for example, just to solve the problem of getting more money for less work. If the book is sold on reasonable terms we can be argued with.

ONE REASON HERB RETURNED EARLY

Peaks of Desire
by Kane O Day

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, reporter, falls in love with Ann Tremaine, wealthy debutante. He takes her to live at his boarding house, and she is attracted to Steve Harrison, a husky mechanic of whom Jerry is jealous. Ann gets a job in a theatre owned by Nick Pagalos, a Greek. Shortly after, Maizie Thompson, an ex-sweetheart of Steve's appears on the scene. She accuses Ann of having stolen Steve from her, but Steve denies this, saying he does not love Maizie. A friendship develops between Jerry and Maizie, and one evening the four of them go out together. The party is a failure and Ann is hurt by Jerry's attentions to Maizie. When Steve tells her he comes of an old Virginia family she begins to think of him more seriously. They walk home and she goes to Jerry's room. When he spends the rest of the evening talking about Maizie Ann realizes he is no longer interested in her. She wipes the tears from her eyes and, exhausted, falls asleep in Jerry's armchair.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLVII.

ALL through the night Jerry watched over Ann.

She was curled up in the soft deep chair; for the first time he realized how small she was physically. Her independence of spirit fell away from her in slumber. There was a helplessness in her soft-breathing unconsciousness that stirred in him a deep well of tenderness. She had felt herself to be so important—so vitally concerned with Life—and, when her velvet edge of freshness had been consumed she lost every vestige of independence. Like a child she had tumbled off to sleep.

He marveled that she could rest so completely in what, for him, would have been such an uncomfortable position. The strain she had been under, the endurance against the battering vitality of Steve Harrison, must have burned up far more of her resistance than he realized. This was something deeper than sleep . . . it was exhaustion . . .

The recollection that he had boasted to her of his regard for Maizie Thompson filled him with a self-loathing. It had been just that—boasting. He had bragged of his interest in the factory girl—had deliberately shouted a lot of nonsense and had stooped even to color it with the false intensity of earnestness.

The truth was that he had meant scarcely a word he had said about Maizie. It had all been bluff—a protective strategy to cover up his humiliation at Ann's evident preference for Steve.

Maizie had interested him nowhere nearly as much as he had pretended. True, she had a superficial novelty of appeal but he had magnified it out of all reason in talking with Ann. The artistic strain in his nature had been rather pleased with the effect of realism he had attained. He had given a good performance, nothing more.

Although he had meant only to protect his feelings and hide his hurt, there was just a dash of satisfaction in the thought that Ann had been piqued . . . It was better that she was a little afraid for him . . .

But he meant to hold to his course of steady reserve . . . to stay coolly and wait for the breaks. He might win with Ann or he might lose. Things could not go on forever in the present way. Affairs would come—as a man he would match himself against Steve Harrison. The better man would win.

Until then, Jerry decided, the wisest plan was to conceal his feelings, to give Ann fresh . . . He was able now to see over the whole case with a forced detachment—a true power of his will over his emotions. If the breaks in fate favored him, Ann might of her own accord turn to Steve. That would be best . . . to let her find her own way out. It was, of course, a risk, but it had to be taken.

"If I let myself get wrought up about all this," he told himself, "I'll weaken myself in her eyes.

"I'm just common clay," he persuaded himself, "but she has a touch of the Divine."

If I criticize Steve it will drive her all the closer to him."

To think of losing her was so unbearable that he flatly excluded the prospect from his mind.

"It's up to me to stand the gaff and keep a stiff upper lip," he would murmur hotly. "The wine of freedom has gone to her head and she's dizzy with Life. But I'm the man. I've got to lie and pretend and overlook things—but I've got to win."

He wondered if other men in love were tortured by such narrow vagaries of thought. They were born to paltry acceptances and [illegible] For [illegible] he was thankful—he was glad that one male agony of goodness. In [illegible] guilt [illegible] he treated her. She was fundamentally chaste. Luckily, I had not know the dangerous desires that Steve sometimes awakened in her. Lucky . . .

As a newspaper man Jerry had lived in a revolting maze of experiences. Like most of his profession, he had developed a hard outer shell, but, inwardly, he was capable of immeasurable purity of thought. Ann, in his eyes, was almost too holy, too spiritualized, to have a kinship with the rest of the world in the flesh.

In his lover's imagination he was beginning to lose all sense of sordidness—to elevate her to a pedestal. This, though, was only in his secret dreams; the practical part of his mind kept telling him she was, after all, only a girl, even though there was not another on earth like her. He realized the necessity of a planned strategy—a kind of watchful waiting—but inwardly he gave himself up to a swimming idealism. He could lie to her about his interest in Maizie and not feel at all like a hypocrite.

"I'm just common clay," he persuaded himself, "but she has a touch of the Divine."

It might have astonished him to know that Steve Harrison felt the same way about Ann. It was an effect she sometimes had upon men. Then, again, others found her quite easily within range of other emotions. Nick Pagalos, for instance.

Sometimes during the night Steve would stretch himself upon the davenport and sleep for minutes at a time, supremely thrilled and elated at her presence in the room with him. Sometimes he would tend over her and watch her soft breathing. He would sit by the window and smoke, nourished by an exquisite sense of companionship. Ann was spending the night in his room, but there was not the slightest feeling of illicitness in his mind. It was a dear experience, a precious accident.

"But it might be hard to make an outsider believe it was all on the square," he mused. "And I used to think I was hard boiled!"

FATHER CELEBRATES 86th BIRTHDTY

Friday marked the 86th birthday anniversary of Colonel Richard Enderlin, one of Chillicothe's most respected and beloved philanthropists and a revered Civil war veteran.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Enderlin, his son and daughter-in-law, of S. Court-st, Circleville, were among the guests.

Colonel Enderlin has resided in Chillicothe since he was 11 years of age and has done much toward its development and improvement. His public donations consist of the Welfare House and the Children's Receiving Home.

In celebration of his birthday anniversary, members of the family and intimate friends of Colonel Enderlin were entertained at a beautifully appointed dinner Friday evening at his home oon E. Water-st.

Covers were laid for 35 guests at the long table which was placed the length of two rooms. The table was indeed a thing of beauty, the appointments being entirely in pink and white. In the center was a gleaming candelabra with six lighted pink candles, and smaller candelabra were placed to each end of the table. At various intervals were baskets of pink roses and white narcissi.

Rev. P. B. Ferris, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, asked the invocation and later gave a short talk and read a beautiful little poem written especially for the colonel.

HOME TALENT SHOWS AT GRAND TONIGHT

Tonight the chorus of artists from "Her Song," will dance between shows at the Grand theater This chorus, one of the most attractive in the show, will be only a sample of the snappy numbers in this home talent production.

Monday night, Miss Grayce Mackey, director from the Rogers Co., will dance in costume with the chorus. She has had professional experience on the New York stage, but her appearance before the public at this time will be more for the purpose of putting across her personality to the persons who will buy tickets for the show.

Miss Mary May Haswell will lead the chorus in a song "Living in Greenwich Village." She is only one of the many new persons who will appear in "Her Song." The characters played by these new comers into the home talent production field, will be supported by others who have been favorites in former successful musical shows.

Goitre Not a Disease

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. B 32 Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. Write him today. —Adv.

BEWARE THE COUGHS THAT FOLLOW FLU!

They May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

BEWARE THE COUGHS THAT FOLLOW FLU!

They May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)
